

TEXTILE OWNERS

Organize to Protect Industry From Outside Interference

EXPLAIN CAPITAL'S PART

Deny That Labor of Itself Can Develop Country's Resources

In an effort effectually to combat 'outside interference' with the industry in Philadelphia...

'The Men and Management Textile Council was really formed as a result of the civic pride and local patriotism for the future of the textile industry in Philadelphia...

'It is the purpose of this council to promote the welfare and insure the success of the textile industry in Philadelphia by promoting the business interests of both the management engaged and the men and women employed in it...

'The council is composed of the slogan of the radicals—the I. W. W., the Bolsheviks, etc.—that 'all wealth is produced by labor'...

'Underdeveloped Resources Not Wealth' 'Underdeveloped natural resources are not wealth. Management must have the natural resources at their disposal...

'The council has already appointed various committees to take charge of and conduct various beneficial lines relative to the creation of harmony and cooperation between the labor and management...

'The plan will be placed on a permanent basis and will be carried out chiefly by an educational campaign. Information, facts and figures will be collected and distributed among the management and the labor...

'Many Mills Associated' Besides President Hurbit, other officers of the council are: John W. Snowden, vice president; W. Masland, secretary; and H. H. Rosow, secretary.

'Among the mills and associations affiliated are the following: Cloth Manufacturers Association, Yarn Association of Philadelphia, the silk mills of Philadelphia, Turkish Towel Manufacturers Association, Hosiery Manufacturers Association, Seamless Hosiery Association, Philadelphia Full-Fashioned Hosiery Manufacturers Association and the textile mills of Philadelphia.'

URGES U. S. WIRE CONTROL

Ex-Congressman Lewis Believes Tariff Reduction Would Result

Former Congressman David J. Lewis, chairman of the Senate Tariff Commission's committee on telephone and telegraph rate standardization, urged government ownership of wire control...

'Present government control, not only of the railroad, but of the telegraph and telephone, is only a guest in the houses of the railroad, telegraph and telephone companies.'

'I do not believe the average railroad investor is opposed to the idea of government ownership of wire control. The objection is the railroad managers.'

WANAMAKER JOINS PROTEST

Merchant Opposes Repeal of Daylight Saving Law

John Wanamaker has joined in the fight against the proposed repeal of the daylight-saving law, and has sent a telegram of protest to the national war council in Washington...

'The protest against the movement to repeal the daylight-saving law, believing it helpful in health and economy to millions of workers.'

MANY VICTORY GARDENS

War Gardens Not Mean Relaxing Food-Raising Efforts

War gardens of last year will be vying with the spring school gardens in being organized to take care of the war effort...

'The war effort will be made to raise plants of every kind and encourage in every way the production of food crops.'

GRANDSON OF CONGRESSMAN DOUBTS SAYRE 'INTERVIEW'

C. Fife Moore, Jr., Aged Four Months, Indignantly Cites Own Experience to Prove Babies Only Eat, Sleep and Cry for First Two Months

C. Fife Moore, Jr., the most recent grandchild of Congressman J. Hampton Sayre, paired during his afternoon meal to gaze at his father, who had interrupted the proceedings by saluting him on the forehead.

'Woodrow Wilson gazed at his father, and said, "What do you think of that, Junior? Woodrow is just a week old."

'Fife, Jr., who is four months old, said, "What do you think of that, Junior? Woodrow is just a week old."

'But, Junior," said his fond dad, "the said "you" when speaking of Senator Lodge's speech and "yours" and "yours" when speaking of your own speech. What do you think of that, Junior, by this time, being filled up to the neck, and unable to get another drop of milk, said:

ARRANGING HEROES' PARADE

Many of Returning 28th and 79th Division Men Decorated

Fifty-eight men of the Twenty-eighth and Seventy-ninth divisions were decorated by the War Department for their heroic deeds during the war.

'Eighty men of the Seventy-ninth Division also have been decorated, according to the War Department. The decorations were made up largely of the Twenty-eighth and Seventy-ninth divisions.

'The Seventy-ninth division is expected to sail for home in June and as in the case of the Twenty-eighth, efforts are being made to place them landed here.

'Active cooperation of the state officials has been pledged to the Philadelphia Council of National Defense in the care of the returning veterans and their parade through the city before detouring for demobilization camps.'

TAX HITS PERQUISITES

Salesmen Must Include Certain Expenses and Allowances

Salesmen and other employees receiving fixed allowances in addition to regular salaries are required to report these allowances in income tax returns.

'Living expenses are not allowable deductions, even though incurred in carrying on a business. Amounts paid for board and lodging by persons who travel in the course of their employment are considered living expenses. Any excess of a per diem allowance over living expenses is taxable income.'

'A salesman who has to pay for the use of a sample room is entitled to deduct such payment as a business expense, and a traveling man is entitled to deduct railroad fares paid by him in carrying on his occupation.'

VAN LOAN'S DEATH FATAL TO FATHER

Aged Parent Overcome When Informed of Noted Writer's End Here

NATIVE OF CALIFORNIA

Body Will Be Cremated After Funeral Next Wednesday

Charles E. Van Loan, noted short-story writer, died yesterday in the Abington Memorial Hospital after an illness of several weeks.

Richard Van Loan, father of the writer, died in Los Angeles a few minutes after news of his son's death was brought to him in church.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at noon in the Wynocte Episcopal Church. The body will be cremated.

Charles E. Van Loan was forty-two years old and had achieved wide reputation as a writer of fiction.

Mr. Van Loan began to fail shortly after coming East last November, when he became associate editor of the Saturday Evening Post. At that time, however, his rugged constitution gave no warning of the breakdown which was to come.

The immediate cause of death was nephritis, but an automobile accident in California six years ago is believed to have impaired his vitality to such an extent that recovery was impossible.

With Mr. Van Loan at the time of his death were his wife and children, who had been summoned to his bedside several days ago, when his recovery became doubtful, and George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post, all of whom had maintained an all-night vigil at the bedside.

Charles E. Van Loan, a native of California, was a well-known writer of fiction. He was a member of the Scribner's Club and the Authors' Club.

His father, Richard Van Loan, was a prominent politician of the old school, died at his home, 219 North Thirteenth street, last night from complications due to advanced age. Mr. McCully was eighty years old.

He had been at his desk in City Hall until Tuesday, when he went home suffering from a chill. His condition was not regarded as critical until last night, when he began to sink and died within a few hours.

His brother, Thomas McCully, Twenty-first and Diamond streets, and three sisters, the Misses Helen and Elizabeth McCully and Mrs. Jennie F. Cleaves, were with him at the time. A granddaughter, Miss Edna P. Paromoe, also survives him.

Funeral services will be held from his home on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. Interment will be made in Mt. Moriah cemetery.

Mr. McCully created a sensation in 1870 when, as a fire commissioner, he stopped the ringing of the bell in the State House, which since Revolutionary times had given warning of small fires.

Mr. McCully was born in Philadelphia. His father was James McCully, a prominent Democratic citizen of the old Southwark district. The elder McCully was one of the commissioners of Southwark, and also a member of the School Board of his ward, being greatly interested in the public school system of education. The son was educated at the Locust Street Central School.

Following the footsteps of his father, Mr. McCully early took an interest in the management of the public schools, and at the age of twenty-two was elected to and made president of the school board of the third section, a position he held for the term of three years, when, having removed out of the ward, he was ineligible for re-election.

Mr. McCully's connection with the fire department dated back to the old volunteer days. When, at eighteen years of age, he became a member of the Hibernia Fire Engine Company, and was subsequently elected recorder and treasurer of that organization. Upon the formation of the fire association, called the Old Guard, he was made president. He was also president of the Hibernia Fire Company.

On December 31, 1870, when the paid fire department was established, Mr. McCully was elected by the Council a member of the Board of Fire Commissioners and served four years and four months in a most efficient manner. In May, 1881, he was re-elected by Council to fill an unexpired term, and in February, 1883, he was re-elected for the full term. Mr. McCully was also a real estate assessor on April 2, 1912, and was reappointed last year. He was connected with the office of the civil service commission in the Blankenburg administration for a year, and was a past master of Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 155; a member of Harmony Chapter, R. A. M., No. 22; a member of Philadelphia Consistory, No. 2, Knights Templar; a past master of Philadelphia Council and a member of the Consistory.

Mr. Van Loan started his career behind a desk for the Standard Oil Company in Los Angeles, Cal. The greater part of his life was spent in that state. He was born in San Jose, June 29, 1876. He was educated in the public schools, and attended the University of California at Berkeley. He was a member of the Los Angeles Athletic and Country Club.

Baseball was his forte. He knew all the "kings of the diamond" by their first names and the nicknames, and he knew the intricacies of the game from the player's viewpoint. These he transmuted into the fine gold of rare fiction, investing his "kings" with actions that even the players themselves enjoyed sympathetically. One series he wrote dealt with "bones"—stupid plays on the diamond—that proved most successful and enjoyable. Once in an amateur league he was a "babe" reporter, and he "knew" himself that he used for material. This was stealing second base with the bases full.

His collection of stories included "The League," "The Lucky Seventh," "The Ten Thousand Dollar Arm," "Inside the Ropes," "Buck Parvin and the Movie," and his newest book, just off the press, "The Innings." Mr. Van Loan was a member of the Los Angeles Athletic and Country Club.

High Wages Up to Workers

'Labor must make good, if it expects to continue the high scale of wages. Labor must make good, if it expects to continue the high scale of wages. Labor must make good, if it expects to continue the high scale of wages.'

Mr. Berritt said the maintenance of the high wage scale will depend on the quality and quantity of the work performed. The only system of preservation on the part of employer toward the wage scale was declared to be a thing of the past.

LIQUOR LICENSES SOUGHT BY 1824

One New Applicant and Five Ask Court to Change Location

FILE NICETOWN PROTEST

National Prohibition Makes Present Session Probably Last of Tribunal Here

Only one application for a new retail license and three for new wholesale licenses were filed at the annual sitting of the License Court at City Hall today.

The present session probably will be the last of the License Court here, with national prohibition going into effect. The total number of applications for retail licenses for the year beginning June 1, of this year, was 1824. This is six more than were granted last year.

The new applicant was Edward Gallagher. He, however, held a retailer's license before. The location of the saloon he desires to open is at Eighteenth street and Pulaski avenue. Gallagher's application is opposed by residents of the neighborhood, and by the Law and Order Society because of the alleged disorderly manner in which his saloon at Eleventh street and Rising Sun avenue was conducted.

Dr. John Gordon, pastor of the Frankfort Avenue Presbyterian Church, who lives at Eighteenth street and Pulaski avenue, appeared and testified that the residents did not want a saloon. The saloon he desires to open is at Eighteenth street and Pulaski avenue. Gallagher's application is opposed by residents of the neighborhood, and by the Law and Order Society because of the alleged disorderly manner in which his saloon at Eleventh street and Rising Sun avenue was conducted.

The first petitioner to face the court was John Verrecchia, applicant for the license now held by Filomeno Di Stasio, at 745 South Eighth street.

Miss Barbara, who has a saloon at 624 South Delaware street, was transferred to take in the adjoining premises on the south, No. 528. The license of the late Harry Halbert, 106 Vine street, was transferred to his widow, Emma C. Halbert.

The court held under consideration the application for a transfer of the John Stafford, banknote, to William B. Johnson and Milton B. Kille, who will lease the bar privilege of the hotel from the receiver if the application is granted. The license of Matthew Gourley, 35 South Eighteenth street, was transferred to Michael J. Carney; that in the name of Estela Weber, since married to Samuel S. Taylor, 1312-14 Ridge avenue, was transferred to her husband, the general Wayne Wayne Hotel, 848 Frankford avenue, will also change hands, the license held by George Witzard being transferred to John J. Brennan.

The application of Patrick Griffin for a transfer of his license from the southeast corner of Point Breeze avenue and Reed street was opposed by his present landlord, Wayne Wayne Hotel, 848 Frankford avenue. The court took the matter under consideration.

The license of Elizabeth Crilly, 2351 South Front street, was transferred to James O'Keane, without objection.

The seven trustees elected are Samuel Berger, Benjamin Collan, Harry Kraft, Isadore Sagorsky, Aaron Schwartz, J. I. Schwartz and Jacob Thib. By agreement of both parties, two watchers supervised the election, Samuel Silverstein representing the independents, and Aaron Gelb, brother of the defeated incumbent, working for the Mackey contingent.

The application of Patrick Griffin for a transfer of his license from the southeast corner of Point Breeze avenue and Reed street was opposed by his present landlord, Wayne Wayne Hotel, 848 Frankford avenue. The court took the matter under consideration.

The license of Elizabeth Crilly, 2351 South Front street, was transferred to James O'Keane, without objection.

STEEL AGENT SEEKS WIFE

Mrs. Harry B. Jewkes May Be in City, Husband Believes

Circulars will be sent broadcast over the country today by Harry B. Jewkes, steel operator of this city and proprietor of the Wynburn Inn, Berwyn, in an effort to locate his wife, Mrs. Eugenia McKowan Jewkes, who has been missing from her home since February 12.

Mrs. Jewkes believes, however, that his wife may have sought employment in this city, since two postcards mailed here have been received by friends in Pittsburgh. She was seen at Ardmore on February 21.

Nervous trouble, following an operation a year ago, aggravated by a recent attack of influenza and overwork because of the servant shortage, are believed by Mrs. Jewkes to be responsible for her disappearance.

Mrs. Jewkes is a niece of Edward O'Neil, the steel magnate, although Jewkes is in the steel business, and also works in the Real Estate Trust Building.

TAXI-MAN SKEPTICAL

Didn't Believe Chester Man's Tale of $35,000 in City Treasury

'Why, I have $35,000 in the City Treasurer's office,' Joseph Shields, of East Ninth street, Chester, told a tax chauffeur when the latter demanded payment for his hour's waiting sentence.

The chauffeur was unimpressed. Instead of going to the City Treasurer's office, Shields went to a police station, and from the police station Shields was taken to the Central Station today, where he was fined $5 and costs by Magistrate Pennock.

Shields will not bother about his $35,000 until he has served his sentence.

WILL CONTINUE DANCING

Community Centers to Remain Open Until Next Month for Purpose

Dancing is as popular with parents who live near the various recreation centers of the city as children, and because of numerous requests the Board of Recreation will continue to furnish dances for adults at the centers until the second week in April.

Arrangements have been made for three police band orchestras to replace the fifteen members of the band who originally volunteered to furnish music. A schedule calling for longer hours of dancing, has been arranged and will last until April 5.
